By Julia R Anagnos

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. In this unique book, Mrs. Julia R. Anagnos, one of the accomplished daughters of Julia Ward Howe, presents, under cover of a pleasing narrative, a sketch of the Emerson session of the Concord School of Philosophy. It has for its frontispiece an excellent picture of the building occupied by this renowned school. -Literary News, Volumes 5-6 * * * * From the author s PREFACE. In making the following unpretentious sketch of two of the seasons of the Philosophical School of Concord, a sketch written rather for enjoyment than with any idea of a reporter s resume, I have taken as a sort of half heroine the shadowy figure of a young girl, through whose eyes the school appears in the light of a coup d il, and not of an exact scientific history. What this slenderly-drawn personage saw and heard, in looking on as a silent spectator at one of the great dramas of modern thought and intellectual aspiration, has been told as simply as the nature of the occasions described would permit, and I shall...
