Excerpt: .so far advanced that his successors would find little difficulty in continuing the main parts of the construction according to his design. In 1331, however, a portion of the communal tax was set apart for the prosecution of the work, and Giotto di Bondone, already the most famous painter of all Italy, was appointed architect of the Cathedral. It is not often, says Mrs. Jameson, that a man takes up a new trade when he is approaching sixty, or even goes into a new path out of his familiar routine. But Giotto seems to have turned without a moment's hesitation from his paints and panels to the less easily wrought materials of the builder and sculptor, without either faltering from the great enterprise or doubting his own power to do it. To his new charge, writes Mr. C. E. Norton, Giotto gave himself...
